As a rule, accommodation must be arranged so that the employee has a room of their own. The rule need not be followed if arranging a single room for the employee is impossible due to the circumstances or if arranging the room would be prohibitively expensive. The matter needs to be established together with the shop steward or the employees needing the accommodation before starting to use the accommodation. The inter-union working group is preparing the guidelines for application.

Collective agreement on working time regulations in area maintenance contracting starting on 1 September 2020: A Saturday allowance of EUR 3.59/h will be paid for work done on Saturdays that is not shift work, overtime or emergency work, with the exception of Easter Saturday if the employee is entitled to the Easter Saturday increase specified in section 11.3 of the collective agreement.

The standby allowance will be EUR 24.02 per standby day from 1 September 2020. The standby allowance applies to the collective agreement of the entire infrastructure industry.

Sick pay is paid based on the employee's average hourly earnings. The average hourly earnings are found out by dividing the pay earned during regular working hours in the previous six months with the hours worked.

Pay for the reduced working time days is calculated on the same basis as sick pay. This regulation does not apply if there is an agreement regarding percentage-based compensation for reduced working time.
